SOLVING A PROBLEM

COVID-19, better known as the coronavirus, has caused an unease across the globe. Millions of people are on lockdown, travel is being restricted, and markets are responding unkindly as the virus continues to spread. It's a challenging time for broader society, which means it can be a challenging time for corporates and communities. In issues and crisis management, there's a saying that goes, "You cannot control what happens to you, but you can control what you do about it." As manufacturers, what we can control is how we support both internally and externally in a time of crisis like this.
